You Have What It Takes!

A Tool For Identifying Your Skills As An Early Childhood Advocate

Infants and toddlers don't have a voice in the public policy process, but you do! You can be an effective advocate for very young children and their families, and you already have the skills to do it. In fact, your abilities, knowledge, and experience give you the foundation to be an excellent advocate.

This unique interactive tool helps you identify the skills that make you a great advocate, and then guide you as you turn those skills into action! In four easy steps, you can:

- 1. List your priority early childhood issues.
- 2. Assess your skills and see how those skills contribute to effective advocacy.
- 2. Match your skills to advocacy strategies that can make a difference for very young children and their families.
- 4. Create your own advocacy action plan!

You already have everything you need to be an advocate for very young children. Use this form to Become a Big Voice for Little Kids™!

	Priority Issues What early childhood issues do you have interest in working on as an advocate?
	Example:	Increasing early childhood mental health services in child care centers and other child-serving settings.
lssue 1:
lssue 2:
lssue 3:

Skills Assessment

With this chart, you can identify the skills you possess that will make you an effective advocate for very young children. For each of the skills listed below, rate yourself on a scale of 1-4 (4 being highest).

Skill	4- Excellent	3- Good	2- Fair	1- Needs Improvement
Enthusiasm for Early Childhood Issues I have a passion for my work and believe it makes a difference.
Knowledge of Early Childhood Issues I can speak with ease about my area of early childhood work and am familiar with resources that I can direct others to if I do not know the answer.
Persistence and Patience I am not deterred by obstacles in my way or discouraged when others tell me "no." I know change takes time, negotiation, and compromise.
Ability to Connect with Others I am a "people person" and enjoy building relationships.
Problem-Solving I enjoy thinking through a problem and figuring out possible solutions.
Communication Skills - Oral I am not intimidated by public speaking. I can condense information into "sound bites" easily.
Communication Skills - Written I can persuade others through writing. I am able to make a written piece both interesting and informative.
Creativity I like to test innovative techniques and think outside the box.
Organizational Skills I can coordinate many different responsibilities without feeling overwhelmed.
Technological Skills I am able to utilize technology to collect and disseminate information, and to connect with others.
Leadership I enjoy developing a vision and setting a course for how to attain it.

Matching Skills to Advocacy Strategies

Listed below are advocacy strategies commonly used to advance a policy issue. The chart illustrates which skills contribute to the success of each advocacy strategy. Review the chart and check off the advocacy strategies that most directly align with your skills and strengths. Visit www.zerotothree.org/policy for "how to" articles for each advocacy strategy.

Advocacy Strategy	Enthusiasm	Knowledge of Issues	Persistence and Patience	Ability to Connect with Others	Communication Skills - Oral	Communication Skills - Written	Organizational Skills	Creativity	Problem- Solving	Technology	Leadership
Build Relationships and Partnerships with Other Advocates				ı
Join a Coalition
Recruit Others to be Advocates for Very Young Children				ı
Be a Source of Information for Other Advocates				ı
Communicate (write, call, or meet) with a Local, State, or Federal Policymaker				ı
Write an Editorial or Letter to the Editor						•
Testify Before Legislators and Other Policymakers				ı
Host a Site Visit for Policymakers				ı			_
Organize Meetings or a Coalition of Other Advocates
Mobilize Other Advocates in Support of, or in Opposition to, a Policy

Create Your Advocacy Action Plan

1. Pick the advocacy strategies from the previous page that most closely align with your skills, and describe how these actions could support your priority issues.

	Advocacy Strategy	How will you use this advocacy strategy to support your priorities?
	Example: Join a Coalition	I will join my state's early childhood coalition and encourage them to support increased funding for early childhood mental health services in child-serving settings.
1.
2.
3.

2. Identify resources you can draw from to achieve your goal. Think about individuals, state and national child advocacy organizations, government agencies, foundations, universities, academic research organizations, professional associations, and national early childhood organizations that might be valuable to your work.

	Individual or Organization		How will you connect to this resource?	How will this resource be helpful to your advocacy?
E			www.zerotothree.org, click "Public Policy" then "Action Center."	I will use ZERO TO THREE's "How to Plan a Site Visit" tool while planning for my legislators to observe the early childhood mental health services at my child care program.

You Have What It Takes: Now Be a Big Voice for Little Kids™!

As an early childhood professional, you may have thought you were unprepared or unqualified for advocacy. In fact, it is your first-hand experience and personal knowledge that make you the perfect advocate. You know what policy changes are needed to support the healthy development of very young children.

By completing this tool, you have identified your priority issues, discovered how your own strengths match up to advocacy strategies, and identified resources that will support your advocacy. All that is left for you to do is to follow your advocacy action plan, and Be a Big Voice for Little Kids™! By sharing what you know with policymakers, you can improve the lives of so many young children and their families.

www.zerotothree.org/policy